

Rebecca Haroldson

Rebecca Haroldson is a third-generation, life-long, resident of Urbandale. She is a 2004 graduate of Dowling Catholic High School. She received her B.A. in Anthropology and her M.S. in Sociology from Iowa State University. She received her M.B.A. from Drake University. During her master's research Rebecca tackled the topic of human trafficking in the Midwest in her masters thesis, and became an advocate for better human trafficking awareness. Her research has been presented at local and national conferences. Her research continues to focus on social inequality. Rebecca sits on the Urbandale Civil Rights Commission and is on the Board of Directors of Crossroads of Iowa.

Rebecca is an adjunct instructor of sociology at Des Moines Area Community College and Iowa Central Community College where she teaches classes focusing on sociology of family, social problems and social inequality. She is the owner of Tiny Pony Pictures Productions LLC, a small production company that specializes in web series and short films.